

Who Grows Your Food?

Apple Wedge Packers • Hendersonville, NC

Apple Wedge owner Greg Nix is a fifth-generation apple farmer. His love for the apple industry began at an early age. He's been on tractors in the orchard with his grandfather since age five.

Along with growing their own apples on 150 acres of beautiful orchards in Edneyville (located outside of Hendersonville, the county seat), Apple Wedge's packing and storage facilities are used by as many as 20 other apple farmers in Henderson County. "The entire apple growing community needs each other to survive," says co-owner Lisa Nix. For this reason, Apple Wedge has become not only a farm but also a packager and marketer for other growers. Together, they produce many thousands of gallons of apple cider and bushels of apples each year.

©2006 Appalachian Sustainable Agriculture Project

Greg Nix

AppalachianGrown.org